“Conversations on Italian Foreign policy”

“Conversations on Italian Foreign policy” is a project of the Institute for International Affairs in partnership with the Italian Diplomatic Institute and the Policy and Planning Unit of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs. The series of seminars is meant to offer new foreign service officials and young professionals dealing with foreign policy related issues the opportunity to discuss and exchange ideas with leading speakers and specialists in the sector. Italian Foreign Minister Franco Frattini opened the first of the 12 monthly meetings on June 17, introducing a discussion of the Italian G8 Presidency. Eminent speakers from the academy and research centres, together with high-ranking officials from government and international organisations will address the following meetings on various foreign policy issues that are particularly relevant for Italy’s role and interests.
