

International Conference The Future of Gas Markets and its Implications for Europe

Rome, 15 December 2015

Palazzo Rondinini
Via del Corso, 518
09:45 – 14:00

Agenda

09:45-10:00 Welcome and registration

10:00 – 10:15 Opening Remarks

- Ettore Greco, Director, IAI, Rome
- Karim El Aynaoui, Managing Director, OCP Policy Center, Rabat

10:15 – 10:35 Keynote Speech

- Yannis Maniatis, former Minister of Environment, Energy, and Climate Change, and Member of the Greek Parliament, Athens

10:35 – 10:50 Presentation of the book project on gas market

10:50 – 12:00 First Panel: Institutional and industrial perspectives on the changing global gas environment

The first panel discusses the ongoing developments in the global gas markets, focusing on the main implications for different European energy stakeholders in terms of security of supply, industrial competitiveness and sustainability of the economic system.

- Sebastiano Maria del Monte, Head of International Relations, Energy, Ministry of Economic Development, Rome

- Marco Margheri, Head of Institutional Affairs, Edison, Rome

12:00 – 12:15 Coffee break

12:15 – 13:30 Second Panel: The rise of the rest: opportunities and challenges

The second panel examines in detail the new regional gas demand and supply patterns, paying attention to the opportunities and challenges determined by the evolving interactions between old energy actors and newcomers in the gas domain.

- Silvia Pariente David, former Senior Energy Specialist in the MENA region, World Bank
- Fabrice Fortin, Head of Gas and LNG Market Development – North Africa and (Francophone) West Africa Integrated Gas – Global LNG, Shell
- Wenran Jiang, Director of Canada-China Energy & Environment Forum, Special Advisor to The Energy Council Global Fellow, Woodrow Wilson Centre for International Scholars

13:30 – 14:00 Keynote Speech and Conclusions

- Hasan Murat Mercan, Chair, Organising Committee of the 2016 World Energy Congress, Ankara

The working language will be English

Special thanks to Banca Monte dei Paschi di Siena for kindly making the conference room available.