

Hybrid training course (IV ED.)
Geopolitics of Energy Transition
From 26 to 28 april 2023

The "Geopolitics of Energy Transition" specialization course at the IAI aims to train experts capable of entering or establishing themselves within national and international institutions, profit and non-profit entities, research institutions, particularly specialized in the fields of energy and environmental development, as well as to provide in-depth insights into policies adopted by public and private actors operating in the sector at national and international levels.

Upon completion of the course, participants will be able to critically read energy and cooperation policies and understand the meaning of interventions for energy sector development and access to resources.

Educational programme

The course will be held in Italian, with the possibility of some modules in English, on April 26, 27, and 28, 2023 in hybrid mode, allowing participants to choose between attending the course online or in person. Specifically, the course will also be held in person if a minimum of eight participants are present on site. If this minimum number is not reached, the course will be entirely online.

The program is structured according to a hybrid teaching approach, alternating seminar sessions with exercises aimed at analyzing through business cases and public policy analysis, the strategies for energy transition and resource analysis, from a regional and international perspective.

The teaching staff is made up of experts, researchers from the Istituto Affari Internazionali competent for the subject and representatives of public and private institutions.

The course includes the following teaching modules:

- geostrategic analysis of resources;
- geopolitics of energy;
- economy and energy;
- energy and environmental policies.

The following laboratory activities are foreseen:

- mini-simulation aimed at making people understand the evolution of disputes and crises;
- exercises to improve time management and organizational skills;
- negotiation and public speaking techniques.

For whom is this course intended?

The "Geopolitics of Energy Transition" specialization course is designed to provide in-depth knowledge for those with a background in Social Sciences (Political Science, Economics, Law) with a specific interest in international and transnational energy dynamics, and for anyone, regardless of their background, who wants to deepen their understanding of the geopolitics of energy transition and development strategies, with intermediate-advanced skills in the field of international relations.
